ManageEngine ADManager Plus Wins Editors' Best and Community Choice Awards from Windows IT Pro Magazine for the Second Consecutive Year

ManageEngine, the real-time IT management company, today announced that its Active Directory identity and access management solution, ADManager Plus, has been named a silver medal winner of the "2012 Editors' Best Awards" and "2012 Community Choice Awards" by Penton Media's Windows IT Pro magazine. This is the second consecutive year that ADManager Plus won the awards in the "Best Active Directory/Group Policy Product" category.

The 2012 Editors' Best Awards are based on a product's strategic importance to the market, its competitive advantages, and its value to customers. For the Community Choice Awards, readers nominate and vote for their favorite products. Windows IT Pro, SQL Server Pro, and Dev Pro awards programs ensure a breadth of inclusion in the surveys.

"For our 2012 Editors' Best Awards, we've leveraged the industry expertise of our editors and authors to bring additional recognition to great products in today's market," said Jason Bovberg, senior editor, Windows IT Pro. "We're proud to now share this invaluable information with our Windows IT Pro and SQL Server Pro communities. For our 2012 Community Choice awards, we continued our unique process of letting the tech community both nominate and vote for their favorite products. The winners of these awards are truly the community favorites. The 2012 winners should be extremely proud of this recognition."

"Winning these awards twice in a row is a humbling experience. It signifies our commitment to offer value to our customers and keeping our software relevant to the changing market needs. In fact, we released ADManager Plus version 6 last month and are enhancing it already," said Manikandan Thangaraj, director of product management, ManageEngine. "We are honored that the Windows IT Pro editors and community recognized our software's importance."
