

Simplify identity protection for modern workforces

ADSelfService Plus delivers unified identity protection by enforcing strong authentication, intelligent access controls, and self-service password management—reducing credential risk while enabling seamless, policy-driven access to enterprise resources.

Core capabilities

Multi-factor authentication

Verify identities with multi-factor authentication and strengthen access controls using customizable MFA policies across users, devices, and applications.

Conditional access

Dynamically tailor authentication requirements using real-time context such as IP address, device, location, and time to ensure precise, risk-aware access decisions.

Self-service password management

Empower users and secure credentials with self-service password resets, account unlocks, policy enforcement and expiry notifications.

Single sign-on

Authenticate once to access hundreds of applications, enabling seamless sign-in to apps with a single set of credentials and reducing password sprawl.

Employee self-service

Empower employees to securely self-manage directory updates, group memberships, and access requests through approval-based workflows.

Business benefits

Achieve measurable returns

"CAMH will be able to save close to $26,000 a year on service desk calls related to Active Directory password resets and locked accounts, and will see a return on investment within the first six months of product implementation."

Judy Olivier,
Project manager at CAMH

Reduce help desk costs

"The number of IT tickets have gone down greatly as our staff members are now resetting passwords or unlocking accounts themselves, rather than logging IT tickets."

Neil Attridge,
IT operation manager, Qual IT

Strengthen security posture

"We implemented a custom machine-level MFA setup, and by whitelisting credential providers, ADSelfService Plus worked seamlessly, strengthening security without disrupting workflows."

Ted Peterson,
IAM engineer, Cavco Industries

Improve workforce productivity

"Post deployment, our employees are able to access resources without any interruptions. ADSelfService Plus has completely automated the process, releasing valuable help desk manpower."

Parvinder Randev,
Enterprise consultant, The Henson Group
